The Good News about Bad Behavior

A book talk by Green Acres parent Katherine Reynolds Lewis

It's not all in your head, journalist Katherine "Kakki" Reynolds Lewis tells us. When she faced parenting challenges with her young children, she used her reporting skills to investigate the phenomenon of bad behavior, crossing the country to talk to parents, teachers, and kids and learning what works and what doesn't from the top parenting, classroom-management, rehabilitation, and brain-science experts.

Lewis presents a comprehensive portrait of the modern state of bad behavior—and highlights game-changing strategies to help parents navigate tricky behavioral situations and work with their children toward better solutions.
